Recent advices from Kansas report dition. Severe weather has cooled of crazy people, without a shadow of right, attempted to colonize the Delawotamie, Sac and Fox, and New York Indian Reservations. But the most tempted in that State was their attempt to take forcible possession of what was known as the" Cherokee Neutral Lands." This tract of land comprised 800,000 acres of the best land in the State, which was held in trust by the United States for the Cherokee Indians, in Heu of $500,000 which was due them from the United States. Full 20,000 people settled upon these lands before the question of the title was settled. James F. Joy, in behalf of the Missouri River, Fort Scott and Gulf Reilroad Company, bought the tract, and the settlers (with a few except ons) had to buy the land of the railroad company at from $5 to $10 per acre. There has always been enough seed of the old set left to organize new expeditions, and this " on to Oklahoma " is but an outgrowth of the old system which has prevailed since the early settlement of Kansas. They have never succeeded in their unlawful attempts to so-called government land, nor are they likely to in the present instance.
